

CBAA and AvPosts Announce New Partnership to Support Careers in Canadian Business Aviation

Ottawa, ON – October 7, 2026 – The Canadian Business Aviation Association (CBAA) is excited to announce a new partnership with AvPosts, a career platform dedicated to connecting employers and qualified candidates across Canada's business aviation industry.

Under the new relationship, CBAA will serve as the exclusive agent for the AvPosts platform and a trusted partner of AvPosts in support of CBAA members and the broader Canadian business aviation community.

The partnership will help strengthen access to career opportunities across the industry while providing employers with another way to connect with qualified aviation professionals.

"Building and supporting the business aviation workforce is essential to the continued strength of our industry," said Harlan Simpkins, President and CEO of CBAA. "Our recent member feedback reinforced that workforce recruitment and retention are important areas where CBAA can deliver value. Through this partnership with AvPosts, we are helping connect talented business aviation professionals with opportunities while giving employers another effective way to reach the people they need."

AvPosts connects employers and job seekers across Canada's business aviation industry, bringing career opportunities together on one dedicated platform. The platform is free for job seekers, and Canadian business aviation employers can post jobs and create employer profiles at no cost.

"AvPosts was built specifically to make business aviation careers easier to find and to help employers reach the qualified aviation professionals they are looking for," said Shaan Bhanji, prior Founder of FlyEasy and now Founder of VOL, the company behind AvPosts. "Pairing industry knowledge with Ben Thomas and his team's tech expertise allowed us to build a platform that is tailored to business aviation. Working with CBAA allows us to extend that mission through an organization that is deeply connected to Canada's business aviation community."

"As a technology-first firm, partnering with VOL let us put AI to work on top of deep industry expertise," said Ben Thomas, CEO of ForIT, the technology consulting firm powering AvPosts. "Shaan's experience running a technology platform in the space and real-world experience with knowing who's hiring, what the roles require and what they pay allowed us to turn that knowledge into a platform that does the heavy lifting for every Canadian employer and job seeker in business aviation."
